If YES, please list your award(s) and the year(s) awarded below:

The was established by Jim and Debbie Guthrie, prominent business leaders in the Riverside community, to encourage undergraduate research at CE-CERT. The award includes a cash prize of up to $5,000 and is given annually to an undergraduate student, or group of students, for research conducted at CE-CERT during the current academic year.

Eligibility:

To qualify for consideration of this award, you must be a full-time undergraduate student at the University of California, Riverside, and have participated in a research project conducted at CE-CERT during the 2019-2020 academic year. Candidates will be judged on the basis of their understanding of the overall research project in which they were involved, independent contribution to the success of the project, and their ability to effectively communicate the results. Finalists may be required to make brief presentations about their research to the award selection committee at a selected time and place.

Part 3 – Application Statement(s):

Please create a statement that includes the following information:

- Your full name, address, CE-CERT laboratory affiliation, and your current year and class level (example, 1st year Ph.D.)
- CE-CERT Project Name
- Principal Investigator
- Direct Supervisor
- Student Collaborators (if applicable)
- Project Duration
- Description of the overall project and your role in it. Feel free to use as many pages as necessary, and to include diagrams, picture, or related materials, if applicable.
